Modern Courtſhip.

RECITATIVE.

WOULD you obtain the gentle fair,
Aſſume a French fantaſtic air;
Oft, when the gen'rous Briton fails,
A foppiſh foreigner prevails.

AIR.

You muſt teach her to dance,
As the mode is in France,
And make the beſt uſe of your feet;
Cock your hat with a grace,
All be-brazen your face,
And dreſs moſt affectedly neat.

Then bow down like a beau,
Hop and turn out your toe,
Lead Miſs by the hand, and leer at her;
Draw your glove with an air,
At your white ſtockings ſtare,
And ſimper, and ogle, and flatter.

Walk the figure of eight,
With your rump ſtiff and ſtraight,
Then turn her with delicate eaſe;
Bow again very low,
Your good breeding to ſhow,
And Miſſy you'll perfectly pleaſe.

If theſe ſteps you purſue,
You will ſoon bring her too,
And rifle the child of her charms;
Her poor heart will heave high,
And ſhe'll languiſh and ſigh,
And caper quite into your arms.
